Commentary

The average salary of those employed in Sussex is £28,752, which is below the South East average and England averages. This places it 6th out of the six sub-regions in the South East, with its relative position remaining unchanged since the last report. The top three districts in Sussex with the highest employment incomes are Mid Sussex, Horsham and Wealden which is slightly different to the previous report where Chichester was ranking 3rd overall.
